The sanitarium represents the very last word In agnipment, ev rything being operated by electricity. Nothing has been overlocked that will add to the convenienec and comfort of the veterans.

Altho great progress has been made in the plans, they are by no means complete. It is the alm of these in charge to make the occasion the most monumental patriotic affalr ever staged in Kentucky. It is roughly estimated that more than 50,000 persons will attend the ceremony, including officials from all corners of the state and nation, also the members of the judiciary, and patriotic, civic and business organizatlons.

Several film corporations have already made arrangements to record the display for the movies.

The official nunouncement of the date for the ceremony was made by Collector Waiker at the instance of the Treasury Department at Washington. Collector Walker, by virtue of his official office, has been disbursing officer during the construction of the sanitarium.

Chronic Constipation.

There are people who never have a movement of the bowels without it is produced by a cathartic. Most of them have brought that condition on themseives by the use of antheral waters and strong eatharties that take too much water out of the system and aggravate the disease they are meant to relieve. A mild laxative tonic like Chamberlain's Tablets affords a gentle movement of the bowels that you hardly realize has been produced by a medicine, and their uses is not so likely to be followed by constipa-

Illinois Central System Calls State Control of Rates Backward Step

THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY O

There has been much discussion lately of blils introduced into Congress to take away from the Interstate Commerce Commission nil anthority over state rates. The proposed legislation, we believe is unprogressive, impracticable and illogical.

Our Federal Constitution grew out of a generally accepted feeling on the part of the people that commerce among the states should be free. Our forefathers were convinced that nothing but rulu and chaos would result from a system which allowed one state to put restrictions upon the commerce of another state. The Federal Government was founded upon the theory that commerce and trade were national subjects and should not be subjected to local conditions. To that end the t'enstlintion confers the exclusive power upon Cougress to regulate commerce among the states. By a long line of Supreme Court decisions it is now thoroughly settled that a state must not be permitted to make any rate or regulation which will interfere with interstate commerce. The power of the lulerslate t'ammerce Commission to condemn such rates which do discriminate against interstate commerce has been repeat-

As a practical matter, everyone knows that a rallway system traversing a number of states is opcrated as a unit. All its property is used in both interstate and intrastate commerce. Its revenues from both are commlugled; its expenses as between the two classes of commerce cannot be accurately separated. It ought not to maintain upon its line as many separate and distinct systems of rates as There are states which it traverses. In the case of the Illinois Central System, passing through and tonehing fourteen states, it is obvious at a glance that it ought not to have fifteen systems of rates, one applicable to Interstate commerce, and fourteen others applicable to the commerce of the different states which it serves. If such a theory is sound, so far as the practical effect is concerned, it would be equally sound to say that each county traversed by the rairroad should have the right to make a separate system of rates. Of course, there is a polltical difference as between the relation of countles to states and slates to nation, but, as a practical matter, the two situations are analogous.

No one has ever been able to give any good reason why a passenger building an intrastate journey should pay a rate lower than or different from that of the passenger making an Interstate journey, both occupying the same seat and receiving precisely the same accommodations. Railroads in the United States have for a long time struggled against this divided authority. They have been subjected to a number of conflicting regulations, and have been greatly embarrassed and Inconvenienced by the necessity of obeying the mandates of various state commissions on the subject of rates, many of which conflict with one another. In some Instances stat commissions have frankly announced their purpose to give to the people of their own state an advantage over the people of anoth r state by making a discriminatory rate adjustment. In one western state, a state contralision put out an order requiring the raliroads to put up placards in their stations explaining how an inter-tate passenger can def at the Interstate rate by buying a ticket to a border line point, g tting off the train, and rebuying across the berder. All these considerations induced Congress, in the Transportation Act, to provide more convenient machin by than high theretofore existed whereby discrimination angainst Interstate against and account of the commerce could be removed, and whereby the states would be required to contribute their feir share toward the expense of maintaining the transportation machine.

While present legislation does not go so far, yet it is recognized by all thoughtful stud nts of the problem that there should be but one body with power to regulate rates, and that the national body, There would still be left to the state commissions many important duties in connection with their police power. Their jurisdiction would be unimpaired as to service matters, such as operation of intrastate trains, character of station facilities, crossings, etc.

It is a great mistak: to supose that the control of rates by the interstate Commerce Commission would make it more troublesome and expensive for patrons of the railroad to obtain relief. The Interstate Commerce Commission has more than a thousand expert employes, drawn from every section of the country, thoroughly familiar with local problems and completent to assist in the solution of rate questions. A petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission will in nearly every case bring one of these examiners almost to the door of the petitioner, where the complaint can be heard. The proceedlng is informal, the expense is less, generally speaking, than is involved in going to the state capital to present a matter to the state commission, and no reason exists why the public generally should not look with favor upon a system which will insure fair, consistent and harmonious treatment of the rate

The removal of the war tax January 1 has had the effect of making a substantial reduction. in both freight and passenger rates, and the railronds have placed in effect reductions in freight rates on agricultural products. They will continue to make reductions as often as they are able to do so without lupalring their ability to serve the public.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

GERMANY'S DEBT

U. S. HELPS PAY

Berlin Collects Tax On Purchases By Foreigners To Meet Indemnity IIIII.

New York, Jan. 28.—How Germany is forcing American importers to pay part of the reparations indemnity is revealed by the new schedule by German export regulations which has just reached here.

For each German industry there is now n ratio of prices for export. In every case higher, and in most cases considerably higher, than the domestle prices for the same merchandise. and the exportation of any kind of merchandise is strictly prohibited except after proper licensing.

Each shipment must be accompnnied by an export ilcense, which is granted only after the exporter testifles to the gale price and to the inland or domestic price. The difference between the two prices does not go into the pocket of the exporter, but is taken up as a tax by the German government.

Officials of the German government have explained that this set of regulations is only a necessary development of the agreement to pay the nilles 26 per cent of all exports as a fund for reparations.

They add that these taxes are kept up also to counteract the charge that Germany is "dumping" goods at low prices into foreign countries. This charge of "dumping" has already resuited in discriminatory tariff walls being erected in a number of countries against the importation of German goods.

The grnln consumed to produce a dozen eggs will vary a great deal, denendlag upon the skill of the noultryman, but it is assumed that he knows how to feed economically. The general-purpose fowls and Leghorns used in this feeding work were kept on the test while pullets and yearlings. As pullets the general-purpose fowls produced 130.5 eggs a year and 88.1 as yearlings. The Leghorns produced an average of 138,7 eggs as pullets and 124,9 as yearlings.

The general-purpose pullets ate in a year an average of 6.7 pounds of feed per dozen eggs produced, and the yearlings ate 9.6 pounds. The Leghorn pullets ate 4.8 pounds and the yearlings 5.5 pounds. The general-nurpose pullets ate 1.9 pounds han the Leghorn pullets, and the dlference increases very rapidly with he age of the stock, the general-purpose yearlings consuming 4.1 pounds eghorn yearlings; therefore the
